From the Pastor

Some of what we have heard in the news is the idea that more people are cooking and eating at home. I do some of my own cooking, eat out some, and enjoy when one of you in the parish brings something that 'tickles my tastebuds'. I fondly remember at home on the farm when we had the pleasure of getting things fresh and the flavors that were at the top of the delicious scale. Once in a while I will try to replicate what mom made with results that are only sometimes good. I have mastered a good custard with the microwave. We are all aware that the reason people are cooking more at home is because restaurants must follow the regulations brought on by the virus. I hope that your experiences have all been good and even more, that your family time at the table has been more than you expected.

Today we celebrate the food that is more than we expect; it is the true Body and Blood, soul and divinity of Christ that we have the opportunity to receive each time we attend Mass. With reason the Mass is often referred to as a banquet, a meal, spiritual nourishment. If we consider the fact that we enjoy so much a meal prepared by our parents; how much more than can we appreciate the meal that is prepared from the beginning of time. When we go forward to receive the Eucharist, we can be thinking of all the graces that this spiritual food is bringing for us. As we listen to the liturgy of the word we can be wondering how all the readings 'fill in' another piece of history that has brought us to this point. We are making history as we continue to live our faith at this particular time. Every point in the history of our world has had challenges and every people has confronted those challenges in their own way. We have the possibility to receive strength from the Eucharist, that heavenly food given by Christ. May we continue to allow the Eucharist to be our strength in our personal lives.

CORPUS CHRISTI; HIS PRESENCE AND HIS PROMISE

Jesus Christ is truly present in the Holy Eucharist: Body, Blood, Soul, and Divinity under each particle of the Eucharist and each drop of the Precious Blood. Fr. John Reinkemeyer explains it thusly: "At the moment of the consecration (Jesus' words instituting the Eucharist), the entire realities of bread and wine are changed into Christ's Body and Blood. Only the 'appearances' of bread and wine remain. The reality is the glorified Christ! The Church calls it transubstantiation." The late Fr. William Carr reminded us in his writings of what Jesus said, "we must eat His flesh and drink His blood in order to have His life in us". It is not the mere 'eating and drinking' which brings us life, for the 'flesh profits nothing'. To truly benefit from Holy Communion, we must give ourselves to Him. To accomplish this, we must be free of serious sin and all attachment to it. We must want to serve the Lord in every way possible. These pre-requisites aren't easy to attain but we owe it to Him who redeems us.

Today's feast of Corpus Christi celebrates not an event, but a fact! Christ is always offering Himself to God, the Father. He allows us to participate in this offering by instituting the wonderful sacrament---or Sacrifice of the Altar. The Holy Eucharist is not only Christ's presence, but also 'His promise'---the promise of eternal inheritance. As the Twelve Apostles taught in the 2nd Century: "And on the Lord's Day, after you have come together, break bread and offer the Eucharist, having first confessed your offenses, so that your SACRIFICE may be pure." Let's try to have this frame of mind when we present ourselves before the Lord in Holy Communion. A devout genuflection or a reverent bow prior to reception is a good start.
